Preface

Please read this first before using the citator.

What is a citator?

A citator is a research tool that identifies subsequent citations of judicial opinions. It identifies what later opinions have cited to a particular decision. This information can be useful to find additional relevant opinions on specific research topics. It is also useful to identify when a decision's holding has been subsequently overruled or modified by later case law.

How comprehensive is the citator?

The citator is very comprehensive for citations occurring before its release date. I've done what I can to identify and include all citations that follow both standard and a variety of non-standard formatting, citations to not-yet-published slip opinions, citations that break across lines or pages of text, and citations that are broken by pagination indicators.

However, my confidence in the comprehensiveness of the citator is matched by my confidence that it is not 100% comprehensive. With a data set of this size, there are almost certainly some small fraction of citations that my search methodology failed to capture because the citations contain some unanticipated irregularity. If you uncover any, please let me know.

How to use the citator?

To use the citator, look up the judicial opinion that you care about. For example, let's say that you intend to rely on the decision of Rechelulk v. Tmilchol, 2 ROP Intrm. 277 (1991) in a brief that you are submitting to a court. Before submitting the brief, look that case up in the 2 ROP Intrm. section of this citator and you will see that thirteen subsequent decisions are listed beneath it (this information is on page 37 of this citator). These thirteen decisions listed below Rechelulk on page 37 have all cited Rechelulk for one thing or another. If you want to find cases on similar topics as Rechelulk, you could look through those thirteen opinions to see if they are similarly on point. At a minimum, you should look at the most recent decisions that have cited Rechelulk to confirm that Rechelulk has not been subsequently overruled or otherwise modified since it was decided in 1991.

For those who practice law in Palauan courts, I recommend that you make it part of your routine to use this citator to look up every judicial opinion that you intend to cite in your briefs. This will help ensure that the opinions you rely on remain "good law." Additionally, it may help you to locate other relevant cases.

Does this citator distinguish between positive and negative treatment?

No. This citator does not indicate why a case cited an earlier case. The citation could be associated with negative treatment (like overruling the previous case), or it could be associated with positive treatment (like agreeing with the previous case). The citator only identifies that a citation occurred, which is not inherently positive or negative.

Does this citator identify the level of court or type of opinion?

This citator indicates the court that issued each opinion in the parenthetical at the end of each citation. No court abbreviation in the parenthetical indicates that it is an opinion of the Appellate Division. Opinions of the Trial Division, Land Court, Court of Common Pleas, Disciplinary Tribunal, and Judicial Disciplinary Tribunal are specifically indicated as such. However, this citator does not indicate whether a citation appears in a majority opinion, concurring opinion, or dissenting opinion.

How was this citator created and funded?

The citator was created using the opinions publicly available on the “Cases & Judgments” page of the Supreme Court’s website (palaucourts.gov.pw/). It was assembled without the use of artificial intelligence. The methodology of how the citator was created is further explained in the Appendix. The initial creation of the original version of the citator was funded by a research grant by the University of North Carolina School of Law. This citator is intended to be distributed free of charge to all who wish to use it.

How often will this citator be updated?

I plan to update the citator at the beginning of each calendar year. Smaller updates may occur more frequently to patch errors and omissions. The version and currency of the citator will always appear on the title page and the top of each page.

What should you do if you spot an error or an omission?

Please let me know! Email me at bennardo@unc.edu to report any errors, questions, concerns, or suggestions.

Appendix

This appendix is designed to explain the methodology used to create the citator. The citator was created entirely using documents that are publicly available on the “Cases & Judgments” page of the Supreme Court’s website (palaucourts.gov.pw/).

Using the full-text search tool on the “Decision Search Page,” I first searched each of the citations to the over 1662 published Palauan decisions starting with “1 ROP Intrm 1” through “2025 Palau 11” using quotations marks. For each search, I sorted the results by date and cut and paste the results into an Excel spreadsheet.

In addition to searching for each properly formatted citation, I also attempted to locate mis-cited cases. For example, I searched “9 ROP Intrm”, “10 ROP Intrm”, and so on to find citations that inadvertently included “Intrm” in the citation even after it was removed from the name of the reporter. I also searched for variations such as “ROP Intern” and “Interim”. In order to find citations to slip opinions, I searched many variations (“Civ App”, “Crim App”, “Civil App”, “Criminal App”, “slip op”, “slip opinion”). Furthermore, I ran a variety of searches involving the page indicator symbol (⊥) to locate citations that were interrupted by a page indicator.

To serve as quality control, I had my research assistant* create a Table of Authorities for 5% of the opinions in version 1.0 of the citator. To do this, I selected every 20th published opinion. This produced a quality-control set of 82 opinions. For each of these 82 opinions, my research assistant downloaded the opinion and searched for citations within it by searching for “ROP”, “ROP Intrm”, and “Palau”. She then listed the citations that appeared within each opinion. The 82 opinions in the quality-control set included citations to 378 Palauan opinions.

When I cross-referenced the 378 citations from the quality-control set against the citator, I found that the original citator was missing 67 of them (17.72%). When I investigated further, I discovered that the missing citations occurred because the full-text search tool on the Decision Search Page does not retrieve quoted search terms that break across more than one line of text. To remedy this shortfall, we manually searched the PDF of every Palauan opinion for citations that broke across lines of text. We have now completed that process and version 1.2 of the citator includes more than 1200 additional citations that were missing from version 1.0.

The work of citatorizing is never done, at least not as long as new opinions are being generated. As of now, I expect that the next update to the citator will be the release of version 3.0 in early 2027.
